Purpose

The Advanced Financial Reporting seminar equips professionals with specialized knowledge and skills to navigate complex reporting challenges and evolving accounting standards. Participants will enhance their ability to analyze financial statements, handle intricate scenarios like consolidations and foreign currency transactions, and apply advanced concepts such as joint ventures and segment reporting. The seminar emphasizes ethical practices, sustainability reporting, and strategic use of financial and non-financial information for decision-making. Attendees will gain actionable insights, practical tools, and the expertise needed to meet stakeholder demands for transparency and create sustainable value in a dynamic financial landscape.

Target Audience

This seminar is ideal for professionals in financial reporting, compliance, and corporate governance, including financial controllers, analysts, auditors, and accounting staff. It benefits those involved in preparing reports, analyzing data, and ensuring compliance with standards, as well as anyone seeking to enhance their understanding of corporate reporting, governance, and industry best practices.

Training Objectives

This program equips participants with a comprehensive understanding of ethical principles, financial reporting frameworks, and advanced concepts such as fair value measurement, group accounting, and related party implications. Participants will develop skills to analyze group financial statements, interpret financial and non-financial data for stakeholders, and effectively present information using modern tools. The program fosters ethical behavior, critical evaluation of accounting frameworks, and the ability to manage group financial statements while addressing changes in accounting regulations. Attendees will enhance their employability and technology skills, preparing them to navigate complex corporate reporting challenges.

*The number of participants is limited to 28.
